US LIFTS IRAN OIL SANCTIONS TO 'UNGRIP...'

US Treasury secretary Scott Bessent says move will bring 140m barrels to global market but insists Tehran will not benefit; The action shows mounting energy crisis pressures and limited options to contain surging global prices as West Asia war enters Day 23.

WASHINGTON

IRAN WAR DAY 23

As tensions in West Asia threaten global energy supplies, the Trump administration has issued a 30-day sanctions waiver for the purchase of Iranian oil stranded at sea to ease energy supply pressures, said US Treasury Secretary Scott Bessent.

This was the third time the US has temporarily waived sanctions in about two weeks. "At present, sanctioned Iranian oil is being hoarded by China on the cheap. By temporarily unlocking this existing supply for the world, the United States will quickly bring approximately 140 million barrels of oil to global markets, expanding the amount of worldwide energy and helping to relieve the temporary pressures on supply caused by Iran," Bessent said in a statement on X.

He stated that this waiver is applied to oil that is already in transit, including sanctioned tankers, on or before March 20 and discharged by April 19, and does not allow new purchases or production.

Further, Iran will have difficulty accessing any revenue generated and the US will continue to maintain maximum pressure on Iran and its ability to access the international financial system, he added.

"So far, the Trump Administration has been working to bring around 440 million additional barrels of oil to the global market, undercutting Iran's ability to leverage its disruptions in the Strait of Hormuz," Bessent added.

The waiver applies to oil loaded on any vessel, including sanctioned tankers, on or before March 20 and discharged by April 19, according to the Office of Foreign Assets Control. It is the third time the US has temporarily waived sanctions on oil since the start of the war.e

As per Kpler's senior manager for crude oil market data, about 170 million barrels of Iranian crude are on ships scattered from the Middle East Gulf to the waters near China. Previously, on March 12, the Trump administration has temporarily eased restrictions on Russian oil transit and purchases.

WASHINGTON'S 'SANCTION' SHOCK

On the 22nd day of the West Asia conflict, the Trump administration issued a shock -- 30-day sanctions waiver for Iranian oil. The objective? To free up 140 million barrels of Iranian oil trapped at sea to crash global prices while ensuring the regime's bank accounts remain frozen. US Treasury Secretary Scott Bessent confirmed the move, stating the US will effectively "use Iranian barrels against Tehran" to drive down prices, tit for tat for Hormuz blocking. US Treasury Secretary Scott Bessent verified this decision, indicating that the US will strategically "utilize Iranian barrels against Tehran" to reduce prices.

HORMUZ STANDOFF: BREAKING GLOBAL ENERGY CHOKEHOLD

Since Feb 28, Iran has effectively throttled the Strait of Hormuz, a critical maritime chokepoint which carries 20% of the world's oil. This blockade pushed Brent crude to a staggering $112.19, prompting Washington's latest manoeuvre. By unlocking oil currently with waiver on Iran oil, allegedly being "hoarded by China on the cheap", the US aims to provide a massive 440-mn-barrel cushion to the global market, undercutting Iran's leverage over the Hormuz while ensuring the "head of the snake" remains financially strangled, said Bessent.

ENDING 'CHINA MONOPOLY': MOVE TO STOP BEIJING'S CHEAP HOARDING

Treasury Secretary Bessent accused China of hoarding Iranian oil "on the cheap" during the war. The new waiver effectively floods the market with millions of barrels of oil, erasing Beijing's "discount" advantage. He noted that the waiver is strictly applicable "to oil that is already in transit and does not allow new purchases or production".

EMPTYING COFFERS: WHY THE ISLAMIC REGIME WON'T SEE A CENT OF OIL SURGE

Bessent said "head of the snake for global terrorism," and using this groundbreaking strategy, the US is effectively decapitating it. While the US is permitting the sale of oil, it will continue to block Iran's access to the revenue, which means Tehran loses its physical oil reserves without gaining the international currency needed to run its war machine.

US' OIL GAMBIT

HOW TRUMP IS USING TEHRAN'S OIL AGAINST TEHRAN AMID HORMUZ BLOCKADE

US temporarily lifts sanctions on Iranian oil to inject supply into strained markets.

Officials acknowledge limited options to control prices, with analysts warning the US is "running out of options."

Move highlights contradiction of enabling Iranian oil sales while continuing military operations against Tehran.

HOW US WILL BANKRUPT IRAN?

Bessent noted Iran will not be able to access any revenue generated from this oil, effectively emptying Tehran's oil coffers, while denying it any money in return. "The US will continue to maintain maximum pressure on Iran and its ability to access the international financial system," he added.

US-Israel strike Natanz nuclear site, yet again

JERUSALEM

The US and Israel carried out fresh strikes on Iran's Natanz uranium-enrichment facility on Saturday morning, the Islamic Republic's atomic energy organisation stated as the conflict in West Asia has entered its 22nd day.

Fortunately, there were no signs of radioactive fallout from the site in central Iran. This comes as the war in West Asia enters its fourth week.

"Following the criminal attacks by the US and the usurping Zionist regime against our country, the Natanz enrichment complex was targeted this morning," it stated. It added that there was "no leakage of radioactive materials reported" in the area in central Iran.

Natanz, Iran's main enrichment site, was hit in the first week of the war, and several buildings appeared damaged, according to satellite images.

The nuclear facility, located nearly 220 km (135 miles) southeast of Tehran, had been targeted by Israeli airstrikes in the 12-day war between Iran and Israel in June 2025, and by the US.

Iran strikes US-UK military base in Indian Ocean

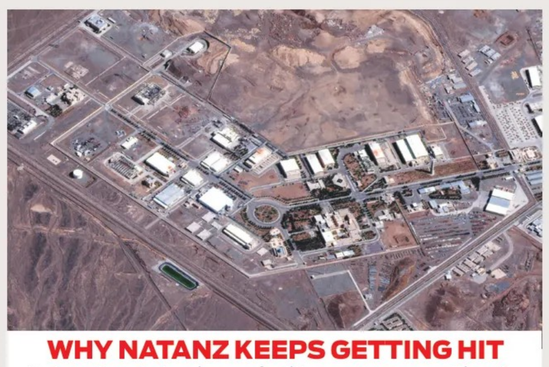
Tehran Iran on Saturday fired two ballistic missiles at Diego Garcia, a joint US-UK military base in the Indian Ocean, in its farthest missile launch on record.

The reported airstrike came a day after President Trump said the US is considering "winding down" its military operation in Iran, adding that other countries would need to police the Strait of Hormuz.

"Tehran is growing bolder in showing its ability to reach Europe," said an Israeli intelligence expert.Meanwhile, Iran said its Natanz nuclear facility was attacked for the second time in the current war.

UK hits back after missiles fired at Diego Garcia

The United Kingdom has strongly responded to what it described as Iran's reckless attacks after Tehran launched intermediate-range ballistic missiles at the UK-US military base on Diego Garcia. The Ministry of Defence said Iran was effectively holding the Strait of Hormuz "hostage," warning that its strikes in the Gulf pose a threat to British interests and its allies. This comes after Donald Trump criticised Keir Starmer for not moving quickly enough to permit the US to use British bases for strikes against Iranian missile activity in the region.



WHY NATANZ KEEPS GETTING HIT

Natanz is not simply one facility among many. The site is carved deep into Iran's mountainous interior and is protected beneath layers of rock. It was engineered to house thousands of uranium-enriching centrifuges while withstanding aerial assault. That hardened, underground design made it a notoriously difficult target; one requiring specialised munitions and meticulous military planning to penetrate effectively. Its significance extends beyond engineering. The enrichment process at Natanz serves dual purposes of generating fuel for civilian energy needs while simultaneously producing material that, if refined further, could yield weapons-grade uranium.

REGION ON THE EDGE

The conflict's scope has grown sharply since Israel struck Iran's South Pars gas field, triggering retaliatory actions that pulled Gulf states deeper into the crisis. Tehran on Saturday announced the launch of their 70th wave of attacks with missiles and drones directed at Israel and US bases in the Gulf. Since the war began on February 28, more than 1,400 people are reported to have been killed in Iran. The casualty figures include at least 204 children.

Indian refiners look to buy Iranian oil as US waives sanctions: Report

MUMBAI

Indian refiners plan to resume buying Iranian oil while refiners elsewhere in Asia are examining such a move after Washington temporarily removed sanctions to alleviate an energy crunch caused by the US-Israeli war on Iran, traders said on Saturday.

Three Indian refining sources said they will buy Iranian oil and are awaiting government directions and clarity from Washington on details such as payment terms.

Refiners in India, which has much smaller crude stockpiles than other big Asian oil importers, rushed to book Russian oil after the US recently lifted sanctions temporarily. The Indian government could not be immediately reached for comment outside office hours.

Other Asian refiners are making checks to see if they can purchase the oil, several people with knowledge of the matter said.

SHORTS FROM WAR FRONT

KHARG ISLAND WARNING

The US could "take out" Iran's Kharg island whenever it wanted, the White House said after a report that President Donald Trump's administration was considering plans to occupy or blockade the oil hub.

UK CLEARS US TO USE ITS BASES

British ministers have agreed to allow the US military to use the UK's military bases in operations to prevent Iran attacking ships in the Strait of Hormuz.

MORE US TROOPS IN WEST ASIA

The US is deploying additional 2,500 Marines to West Asia, US media reported, possibly signalling a coming ground operation three weeks into the US-Israeli campaign against Iran.

22 COUNTRIES URGE IRAN TO REOPEN STRAIT OF HORMUZ

At least 22 countries, including the UAE, Bahrain, UK, Germany, France, Japan, South Korea and Australia, on Saturday urged Iran to cease attacks and reopen the Strait of Hormuz. In a joint statement, they condemned Iran's attacks on commercial vessels as well as oil and gas facilities in the region.

'SHIPPING LANES MUST REMAIN OPEN, SECURE': MODI

NEW DELHI

Prime Minister Narendra Modi on Saturday spoke to Iranian President Masoud Pezeshkian and condemned the attacks on critical infrastructure across Iran, which he described as a threat to regional stability.

In a post on 'X', PM Modi wrote, "Spoke with President Dr Masoud Pezeshkian and conveyed Eid and Nowruz greetings. We expressed hope that this festive season brings peace, stability, and prosperity to West Asia."

> Appreciated Iran's continued support for the safety and security of Indian nationals in Iran.
> —Narendra Modi, PM

The PM reiterated the significance of safeguarding freedom of navigation and called for ensuring the security of shipping lanes amid the blockade of Strait of Hormuz — a vital maritime chokepoint which accounts for one-fifth of the world's oil and gas trade — which impacted energy supplies globally.

"Condemned attacks on critical infrastructure in the region, which threaten regional stability and disrupt global supply chains. Reiterated the importance of safeguarding freedom of navigation and ensuring that shipping lanes remain open and secure. Appreciated Iran's continued support for the safety and security of Indian nationals in Iran", Modi added.

This was PM Modi's second call with the Iranian President since the conflict in West Asia began with the February 28 US-Israel coordinated strikes on Iran.

FLAGS RUPEE SLIDE

Inflation coming': Rahul slams Centre over weak rupee

NEW DELHI

Congress leader Rahul Gandhi on Saturday accused the Modi government of lacking both direction and strategy necessary to manage the current economic situation facing the nation.

Gandhi also expressed concern that the government will raise the prices of petrol, diesel and LPG following the elections in West Bengal, Tamil Nadu, Assam, Kerala and the UT of Puducherry scheduled next month.

The leader of opposition in Lok Sabha said the weakening value of rupee against the US dollar and a sharp rise in industrial fuel prices will inevitably lead to price hikes affecting every Indian.

He also claimed that while the government offers "empty rhetoric" and maintains that everything is "normal", the reality is that the rising costs of daily items will impact every household.

"The rupee weakening against the dollar and heading towards 100, along with a sharp rise in industrial fuel prices – these are not just numbers; they are clear signals of the inflation to come.

The Congress has criticised the government's handling of the economic situation arising from geopolitical tensions in West Asia, which have affected global energy markets and, in turn, India's import bill.

Use of AI plays an important role in the justice process, CJI Surya Kant

Surya Kant said artificial intelligence will enhance justice delivery, guiding parties through every stage from filing to final order issuance

CH NEWSBENGALURU

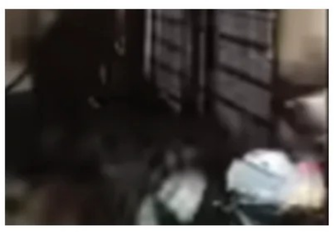
Artificial intelligence will play a key role in the administration of justice and will provide explanations to the parties about all stages of the process from the day the application is filed until the final order is issued, said Supreme Court Chief Justice Surya Kant.He was speaking while inaugurating a symposium on Dispute Prevention and Resolution through Artificial Intelligence (AI) organized in the city by the Karnataka Judicial Academy.Laws, regulations, and legal practices may change over time. However, the concept of justice remains constant and serves as the foundation of the legal system. Artificial intelligence can support the justice system, he said, but the responsibility to interpret the law and ensure justice always lies with human judges.Technology has made court proceedings faster and more efficient, not only for judges, magistrates, and lawyers, but also for ordinary citizens seeking justice.

Despite these advantages, there cannot be an overreliance on artificial intelligence in the judicial decision-making process. AI can be very useful for tasks such as legal research, analyzing large amounts of data, and supporting administrative work in courts.Electronic filing systems, digital case management and public access to court data have improved transparency and efficiency in the administration of justice. Courts do not just apply rules. They interpret laws in the context of real-life situations and human experiences. Therefore, no matter how effectively artificial intelligence is used again, the need for human judges to make final decisions will continue to grow, he said.

> The legal system is constantly evolving in response to social changes, technological advancements, and people's needs. In modern times, the legal system has undergone another major transformation as courts increasingly move from traditional paper-based processes to digital platforms and technology-driven systems, Supreme Court Chief Justice Surya Kant said.

Fire destroys over 1k patient files at NIMHANS

CH NEWSBENGALURU



More than 1,000 patient files and registers were destroyed in a fire at the medical records department (MRD) within the OPD building of the National Institute of Mental Health and Neurosciences (NIMHANS). The fire was contained, but the matter has not been reported to police yet.The incident occurred around 6.30pm after the department had closed. We got a call from Nimhans at 6.59pm, seeking help, said G Ravikumar, a firefighter who works with the state fire and emergency services department. Our personnel reached the hospital, extinguished the fire, and got back, he told. Dr HN Shashidhara, resident medical officer at NIMHANS, said that soon after smoke was noticed emanating from the MRD windows, action was taken and sprinklers activated, which helped contain the fire.

The fire did not spread as a major blaze; instead, it caused superficial damage to a few hundred patient record files and some registers, with no complete destruction or casualties reported, he said, adding the hospital has a digital hospital information system in place, introduced in July 2025, and hence most records are backed up. Though the authorities claim that the fire will not impact patient care, sources say otherwise.

The damage is not just limited to the loss of handwritten prescriptions by senior doctors, as claimed by the authorities. Seven racks were burnt to ashes, each of which had at least 60 files. The destroyed or damaged records may include medico-legal/court case files and records related to prison inmates referred for mental health evaluation, raising potential legal implications, said a source, on the condition of anonymity. Meanwhile, Dr Shashidhara said an inspection, including an external biosafety/fire safety person identified two likely sources, overheating from an old tubelight choke or an exhaust fan. We haven't filed an FIR yet, as there is no loss of life, injury, major property loss, or suspicion of foul play. Future precautions will include replacing old tubelights with LED lighting, supported by a government action plan/grant and reorganising MRD storage/furniture to reduce dense packing so any future fire would be less likely to spread, he added.

Dr HR Arvinda, Medical Superintendent at NIMHANS, said the suspected cause is an electrical short circuit, but this is only a preliminary assessment.

Challaghatta railway underbridge ready, major arterial road nears April completion

CH NEWS, BENGALURU

The long-awaited connectivity boost for west Bengaluru is finally nearing reality. Bangalore Development Authority (BDA) has completed the railway underbridge (RUB) at Challaghatta, a crucial component of infrastructure under the Major Arterial Road (MAR) project. Once fully operational, the corridor will create a seamless link between Magadi Road and the Bengaluru–Mysuru access-controlled highway through Nadaprabhu Kempegowda Layout (NPKL). Officials say the long-delayed project has now entered its final stretch, with full completion expected by April. According to BDA officials, construction of the RUB involved several technical challenges as the work had to be carried out beneath a live railway track connecting Bengaluru and Mysuru.

The work was executed in phases over the last three months in coordination with South Western Railway. The 40-metre box-pushing operation was particularly complex, with each of the eight concrete boxes weighing about 1,200 metric tonnes. Works beneath an active railway line usually take around six months. However, with close coordination with the railways, deployment of additional manpower and round-the-clock work, the project was completed in three months, a BDA official said.

BDA is also constructing a vehicular overpass near RUB. The proposed overpass, located about 10 metres from the underpass, will provide connectivity between Blocks 5 and 6 of Nadaprabhu Kempegowda Layout. Officials said the overpass work is progressing well and is expected to be completed in a month. The MAR is being developed as part of the proposed Peripheral Ring Road Phase-2 project that will link Hosur Road with Bengaluru–Mysuru highway. Officials said the state government has approved acquisition of four acres of land along the MAR alignment for the project. There are 17 points where service roads currently have missing links. Process is on to complete the works that include with ducts and provisions for utilities, the official said.

Motorists and allottees of Nadaprabhu Kempegowda Layout have demanded that the Challaghatta junction, where the MAR meets the Bengaluru–Mysuru highway, be designed in a futuristic manner to avoid traffic congestion. BDA currently plans to install traffic signals at the junction and take up integration works as part of the PRR-2 project. Officials said traffic police have been consulted to ensure smooth movement at the junction.

Considering public demand, BDA will also construct a cycle track along the corridor and undertake beautification with flower- and fruit-bearing trees. The 11-km road is planned as a 100-metre wide, 10-lane corridor with six main carriageway lanes and four service lanes to manage local traffic.

Govt shelves free CET crash course for govt college students

Online CET coaching programmes, supposed to prepare students for CET 2026 are yet to restart.

CH NEWS, BENGALURU

With just a month left for Karnataka Common Entrance Test (KCET), the government has shelved its plan of holding free CET crash course for students from government PU colleges. The department of PU education had planned a 30 day residential course for Science students to prepare them for entrance exams like CET. The plan was to identify interested students and conduct classes in a select school in each district. A three-day teacher training programme planned in the second week of March did not take place. The students now have to shell out a minimum of Rs 18,000 for 30-day coaching from private institutes.

The department cited technical issues for postponing CET coaching. We encountered some problems in getting critical approvals for the programme since it spans two financial years, said S Bharat, Director, department of PU education.

Instead, we are coming up with a new model of CET coaching from 2026-27 in PU colleges with our faculty, he said. The proposal is to build fresh content and deliver it in a year-long format.

We are trying to build content with the help of DSERT, which will be delivered along with PU curriculum. This will be a year-long project, and not a crash course, he said, adding teachers will be trained to deliver CET training.

Since exams were going on for PU-2, the classes were not happening. Now we are planning to restart in two phases. Till evaluation of papers is over, we do not have lecturers in colleges. We plan to conduct YouTube sessions starting next week. By March-end, we'll direct the principal to be available for facilitating sessions, the Director explained. The government decision is a big blow for students from low-income households. Without any alternative, students are approaching private tutorials for entrance coaching. It is common knowledge that entrance coaching is a must to attain a good rank. Poor students are being left out in this race, said a PU college lecturer. Some principals from districts like Vijayanagar and Ballari use various funds like district mining funds to organise some classes in college. A few Bengaluru colleges have tied up with NGOs to get CET classes going. Largely, students are left without any handholding, said AH Ningegowda, Karnataka State PU College Lecturers' Association.

AGENCY FINED FOR CUTTING CARE FOR 70-YEAR-OLD'S DISABLED SON

CH NEWS, BENGALURU

A 70-year-old widow, HS Vinoda, has got relief after a consumer disputes redressal commission pulled up a city-based caregiver agency for abruptly stopping services for her bedridden son despite receiving the monthly fee in advance. The Bengaluru Urban II additional district consumer disputes redressal commission ordered Sagar Health Seva Foundation (SHSF) to refund the monthly fee paid in advance and pay compensation as well as litigation costs to the complainant, who lives in BSK III Stage. The complainant's only son, Vikram, is bedridden due to secondary progressive multiple sclerosis, with spastic quadriparesis. He requires round-the-clock support for even basic day-to-day activities such as eating, bathing, and personal care. According to her complaint, SHSF assured her that it would provide trained caregivers who would stay at her residence and, to ensure uninterrupted service, substitutes would be arranged immediately in case anyone was absent. Based on these assurances, Vinoda signed a service agreement with the agency on April 18, 2024, and paid Rs 23,000 a month in advance through UPI transactions from April 2024 until Jan 2025.The agency initially provided the services, but the situation changed after she made the payment for January. The agency abruptly stopped sending the caregiver within two days of her January 11, 2025, payment, leaving her son without the required assistance. Despite repeated attempts to contact the agency for a replacement or refund, she allegedly received no response.

LPG crunch takes country chicken out of plate!

CH NEWS, BENGALURU

The shortage of commercial LPG, triggered by the ongoing crisis in West Asia, has begun to take a deeper toll on Bengaluru's food ecosystem, with chicken shops reporting sharp losses and limited offerings. While the supply crunch has affected eateries for nearly two weeks, its impact was felt more acutely Friday, a traditionally high-demand day for non-vegetarian food during Ugadi (Hosatodaku), leaving many customers disappointed.

Chicken vendors across the city said short supply of LPG has forced them not to prepare certain varieties, particularly 'naati koli' (country chicken) and skin-on chicken, both of which require sustained flame for proper cleaning and roasting.

In the absence of adequate LPG supply, many shops have temporarily stopped selling these items, restricting their menus to skinless chicken. For the past 15 days, we have stopped selling country chicken, and even skin chicken is unavailable, said Prathap, a chicken shop owner in Chandapura. We are struggling to get LPG cylinders at any cost. On Friday, which should have been a big business day, turned out to be very bad for us.Vendors explained that country chicken requires intense flame to singe off feathers and clean the meat, while skin-on chicken must be thoroughly roasted to remove impurities and ensure hygiene, making LPG essential for daily operations. Attaulla Sharaff, who runs a shop near Lalbagh Main Gate, said the situation has worsened as existing gas stocks have run out. We have not received commercial LPG for almost 15 days. People mostly prefer skin chicken and when we don't have it, they simply walk away. We have lost nearly 40 percent of our customers, he said.

NEWSPAPER BODIES OPPOSE AD POLICY, SEEK SUSPENSION

Newspaper associations in Vijayapura opposed the new advertisement policy, citing risks to small and regional publications

VIJAYAPURA

Strong opposition has emerged from district and regional newspaper associations against the proposed Karnataka Advertisement Policy–2026. The associations submitted a memorandum to the District Collector, addressed to Chief Minister Siddaramaiah, demanding that the policy be immediately suspended.

Members stated that small and regional newspapers have long served as the voice of the people and play a vital role in democracy. However, they alleged that the new policy ignores their concerns and was framed without proper consultation with stakeholders.

The associations raised several key issues, including strict circulation norms and what they called an unscientific classification of newspapers into different categories. They also pointed out that advertisement rates have not been revised for the past six years, despite rising operational costs.

According to them, small newspapers are already facing financial stress due to the impact of the COVID-19 pandemic and the growing influence of digital media. They warned that the new policy would further weaken their financial position.

Concerns were also raised over the proposed reduction in advertisement rates and the introduction of a "sunset clause" that could end incentive-based advertisements. The reduction in tender advertisement allocations was said to directly affect revenue.

The associations also demanded continued support for Kannada newspapers in border areas. They stressed that removing existing benefits would harm publications that invest heavily to serve society.

They urged the government to hold the policy and review it after discussions with stakeholders. Several journalists and editors were present during the submission of the memorandum.

TUITION ALERT

Illegal Tuition Centres Raise Serious Concerns

VIJAYAPURA

With summer holidays beginning, illegal tuition centres are rapidly increasing across Vijayapura district, worrying many parents.

As schools close for vacations, advertisements for "summer coaching camps" have appeared across the city. However, residents allege that many of these centres are unregistered and operate without official approval. They claim a "tuition mafia" is running such centres, attracting parents with promises of quality education and guaranteed admissions.

These coaching centres reportedly prepare students for entrance into institutions like Kittur Rani Chennamma Residential School, Morarji Desai Residential Schools, and Sainik Schools. Despite charging high fees, many centres are said to lack basic facilities. Parents have complained about poor infrastructure, unsafe accommodation, lack of separate hostels, no playgrounds, and inadequate drinking water and hygiene arrangements.

Concerns have also been raised about the pressure placed on children. Some centres allegedly conduct classes from early morning until late evening, including Sundays, leaving little time for rest or family interaction. Critics warn that such intense schedules can harm children's mental and emotional well-being.

The issue has drawn criticism due to the lack of strict action from the education department. Citizens are demanding immediate steps to regulate or shut down these illegal centres.

Child Rights Commission member Manjula Anand has condemned the practice, stating that running coaching centres without permission is illegal. She stressed that summer vacations should help children relax and grow, not add stress.

PM Modi speaks with Iran Prez, condemns attacks on critical infra

Modi emphasised the need to maintain peace and ensure smooth functioning of economic activities

Prime Minister Narendra Modi on Saturday held a phone conversation with Iran's President Masoud Pezeshkian, discussing the current security situation in West Asia and extending greetings on Eid and Nowruz.

During the call, Modi strongly condemned attacks on critical infrastructure in the region, stating that such actions threaten stability and disrupt global supply chains. He emphasised the need to maintain peace and ensure smooth functioning of economic activities.

The Prime Minister also highlighted the importance of safeguarding freedom of navigation and keeping key shipping routes open and secure. He noted that disruptions in these routes could impact global trade and energy supplies, affecting several countries, including India.

Modi appreciated Iran's continued support in ensuring the safety and security of Indian nationals residing in the country. Both leaders also discussed the ongoing tensions in the region and the need for dialogue and diplomacy to resolve conflicts.

The two leaders had earlier spoken on March 12, when Modi expressed concern over rising tensions and the loss of civilian lives. He had reiterated India's stand that issues should be resolved through peaceful means.

Following these discussions, Iran allowed India-flagged vessels to pass through the Strait of Hormuz, ensuring smoother transit of goods and energy supplies.

Meanwhile, External Affairs Minister S. Jaishankar has been in touch with Iranian Foreign Minister Seyed Abbas Araghchi, discussing regional security, shipping safety, and bilateral cooperation.

Global leaders have also indicated that India could play a constructive role in easing tensions in the region through diplomatic efforts and dialogue.

Raut alleges election manipulation, questions EC neutrality

NEW DELHI

Shiv Sena (UBT) leader Sanjay Raut on Saturday made serious allegations about India's electoral process, claiming that elections are being manipulated and influenced through unfair means.

Speaking to reporters, he questioned the credibility of the system and called for international observers to examine how elections are conducted in the country.

Raut criticised Prime Minister Narendra Modi's statements about India's democratic strength on global platforms.

He urged organisations like the United Nations to send teams to assess the situation on the ground, alleging that elections are no longer free or fair.

He claimed that since the current leadership came to power, irregularities have increased in elections at all levels.

According to Raut, traditional malpractices like booth capturing have been replaced by modern methods such as misuse of money, power, and alleged manipulation of voter lists. He also raised concerns about the role of the Election Commission, claiming that it is no longer functioning as an independent body.

Referring to West Bengal, Raut alleged that administrative decisions and large-scale transfers of officials point to undue interference.

He described the situation as similar to an undeclared emergency and warned that such actions could affect the fairness of elections.

Kerala court awards life term in doc murder case

KOLLAM

A court in Kerala has sentenced Sandeep, a school teacher, to life imprisonment for the murder of young doctor Vandana Das inside a hospital.

The Kollam Additional District and Sessions Court also awarded a total of 30 years' jail for other offences, after which the life term will begin.

The prosecution said it will appeal for the death penalty, stating that it had earlier sought the maximum punishment. However, the court did not consider the case as "rarest of rare." 'CLEAN GANGA REMAINS ON PAPER'

BJP betrayed Ganga Maiya: Akhilesh

LUCKNOW

Samajwadi Party chief Akhilesh Yadav has intensified his criticism of the BJP, terming it a party of "thieves, goons, and traitors".

Referring to comments made by West Bengal Chief Minister Mamata Banerjee, Yadav added that the BJP has also "betrayed" Ganga Maiya by failing to fulfill its promise to clean the river.

He questioned how large sums of money allocated for cleaning the Ganges River were spent and recalled the demolition at Manikarnika Ghat in Varanasi. Yadav also expressed strong confidence in Banerjee's leadership, saying she could win elections in West Bengal even if she contests alone.

He further alleged that in Uttar Pradesh, the BJP benefited from the support of officials aligned with them, claiming that election outcomes were influenced by such backing. In contrast, he said officials were not removed when the BJP came to power in the state.

Opposition leaders intensify attack on BJP

Samajwadi Party chief Akhilesh Yadav and West Bengal CM Mamata Banerjee sharply criticized the BJP, accusing it of betrayal, misuse of funds, and undermining rights, while asserting confidence in defeating the party in upcoming elections and calling for unity.

On the possibility of a cabinet expansion in Uttar Pradesh, Yadav dismissed it as "political drama."

He asserted that the Samajwadi Party is gearing up to remove the BJP from power in the 2027 elections, saying such moves by the ruling party would not make a difference.

Meanwhile, Mamata Banerjee, speaking at an Eid gathering in Kolkata, launched a strong attack on the BJP-led central government.

She accused it of undermining people's rights, particularly over the Special Intensive Revision (SIR) issue, and vowed to continue her fight against it. She also alleged attempts to impose President's Rule in West Bengal but insisted her government would not be intimidated.

Banerjee reiterated her sharp criticism, calling the BJP a "party of thieves, goons, and traitors," and warned against efforts to divide voters. She emphasized unity across communities and said her struggle is aimed at protecting the rights of the people.

Tehran does not seek war with neighboring countries: Prez

Iranian President Masoud Pezeshkian calls for regional harmony, dialogue, and cooperation during Nowruz and Ramadan celebrations

TEHRAN

As the vibrant colors of Nowruz and the spiritual peace of Ramadan fill the air, Iranian President Masoud Pezeshkian has issued a heartfelt plea for harmony.

Speaking during a time of national reflection, the leader emphasized that Iran has no desire for conflict with its neighbors. Instead, he reached out a hand of friendship to nearby nations, calling them "brothers."

The President's message comes during a somber period. He shared deep condolences over the passing of Supreme Leader Ayatollah Ali Khamenei, following recent military strikes. Despite these heavy losses and rising tensions now entering their fourth week, Pezeshkian urged his citizens to remain calm and united. He moved away from talk of war, focusing instead on the power of conversation.

In a bold move for regional stability, Pezeshkian proposed a new "Islamic Assembly of the Middle East." This group would allow neighboring countries to work together on trade, culture, and safety without needing help from outside powers. He argued that when Muslim nations argue, only their enemies win. By creating a shared security plan, he believes the region can finally find lasting peace.

While he was firm in his criticism of Israel's role in local unrest, his main goal remained clear: cooperation over confrontation. He promised that Iran would not interfere in the private business of other countries. As the holiday season continues, his message serves as a reminder that even in difficult times, dialogue is the best way to solve old misunderstandings.

'Winning war faster pace than anticipated'

Terming Iran as the head of the snake for global terrorism, US Treasury Secretary Scott Bessent on Saturday said through President Trump's Operation Epic Fury, the US-Israel are winning this critical fight at an even faster pace than anticipated. In response to Iran's terrorist attacks against global energy infrastructure, the Trump Administration will continue to deploy America's economic and military might to maximize the flow of energy to the world, strengthen global supply, and seek to ensure market stability, he stated in an X post. "President Trump's pro-energy agenda has driven US oil and gas production to record levels, strengthening energy security and lowering fuel costs, his post reads. Any short-term disruption now will ultimately translate into longer-term economic gains for Americans – because there is no prosperity without security," he added.

Switzerland halts US arms exports amid Iran war

BERN

Switzerland has officially halted all weapon exports to the United States due to the intensifying conflict involving Iran. Government officials announced that their long-standing policy of neutrality prevents them from sending military equipment to any nation currently engaged in active warfare. This bold move comes as the conflict enters its third week, causing a severe humanitarian crisis and driving up global energy costs. Beyond blocking arms, Switzerland has also restricted its airspace. While three flights were permitted, authorities recently rejected two American requests to fly over Swiss territory to maintain their impartial stance. Swiss law strictly controls the trade of military technology, requiring officials to consider human rights and international balance before approving sales. Since February 28, no new licenses have been granted to the U.S. Experts are now reviewing existing permits for dual-use goods to ensure they align with these tight regulations. Last year, the U.S. was a major customer, buying $119 million in Swiss arms. However, Switzerland has a firm history of cutting off supplies during wars, having previously restricted sales to Israel and Ukraine. Leaders insist they will continue to monitor the situation to protect their reputation as a neutral peacekeeper.

India sends 2.5 tons of emergency aid to Kabul

KABUL

Following a devastating airstrike that shook the city of Kabul earlier this week, India has stepped forward with vital support.

A shipment containing 2.5 tons of emergency medical aid was dispatched to help those suffering in the aftermath of the tragedy. This relief package includes essential medicines and high-tech equipment to support hospitals currently struggling to treat hundreds of wounded patients.

The Ministry of External Affairs confirmed the move, stating that India stands firmly in solidarity with the Afghan people during this dark hour. The disaster occurred on March 16 when an airstrike hit a drug rehabilitation center. Reports from Afghan officials indicate a staggering loss of life, with over 400 people killed and 250 others injured. Many victims were patients and healthcare workers who were simply at the facility for treatment and care.

Local hospitals in Kabul have been completely overwhelmed by the sudden influx of casualties. International leaders and human rights groups have expressed deep shock, calling for an immediate investigation into the event to ensure humanitarian laws are respected. While the situation has caused immense grief, there is a small glimmer of hope for peace.

Both sides have agreed to a temporary pause in military actions to honor the upcoming Eid al-Fitr holidays. This brief ceasefire comes after requests from several neighboring countries. India's timely aid serves as a reminder that even amidst high regional tensions, helping innocent civilians remains a top priority for the global community.

US lawmakers counter China's growing global influence

WASHINGTON, DC [US]

A bipartisan group of US lawmakers has introduced new legislation to investigate China's expanding global influence, reflecting growing concern in Washington over Beijing's coordinated efforts worldwide. The proposed law, called the Combating Chinese Communist Party Influence Act, would require the Director of National Intelligence to assess the Chinese Communist Party's (CCP) foreign influence activities and their impact on US national security.

Representative Derek Tran, who introduced the bill, said the legislation aims to provide policymakers with clear, evidence-based insights into China's tactics. "This intelligence is essential to protecting American interests, alliances, and economic stability," he said. Co-sponsors include Representatives Don Bacon, Marilyn Strickland, and Pat Harrigan, highlighting strong bipartisan support.

Lawmakers argue that China's global reach has grown in recent years, especially in Latin America, Africa, Europe, and the Indo-Pacific. Beijing has become a major trade partner and lender in Latin America, with Chinese firms controlling strategic ports, such as Peru's Chancay megaport, under the Belt and Road Initiative. Critics say these investments go beyond economics, aiming to expand geopolitical influence.

Harrigan warned that the CCP is undermining US influence by manipulating financial systems and weakening trust in democratic institutions. Under the bill, the intelligence community would have 180 days to report on CCP-linked activities dating back to January 2023. The assessment would examine effects on US alliances, global financial systems, and international perceptions of Washington. The legislation signals a firm US effort to monitor and counter China's influence globally, ensuring that American strategic, economic, and political interests are safeguarded amid an increasingly complex international landscape.

SEOUL WORKS TO CLEAR VITAL OIL ROUTE

South Korea negotiates reopening Strait of Hormuz amid energy crisis, aiming to secure oil shipments and stabilize regional supply

SEOUL

South Korean officials are working overtime to reopen a critical shipping lane as a global energy crisis looms.

Following a tense blockade in the Middle East, Seoul is now in active talks with Iran and other nations to ensure cargo ships can safely pass through the Strait of Hormuz once again.

The move comes after Iran hinted at a breakthrough. Iranian leaders recently suggested that ships headed for Japan might soon be allowed through the narrow waterway, which has been virtually shut down due to rising military conflict. This small opening has given South Korea hope that its own essential oil tankers might be next in line for safe passage.

The stakes could not be higher for local families and businesses. More than 20 percent of the world's oil flows through this specific route. Because the shipping lanes sit within Iranian waters, the recent shutdown sparked fears of soaring fuel prices and energy shortages across East Asia.

While South Korea joined several European nations in criticizing recent Gulf attacks, the government's main focus remains on protecting its citizens and securing the nation's energy supply.

Meanwhile, overseas, US President Donald Trump indicated that American military operations in the region might soon "wind down" as specific goals are met. He has called on South Korea and its neighbors to take a larger role in keeping the seas safe. For now, Seoul remains hopeful that diplomacy will prevail, keeping the lights on and the ships moving.

Fact-file

* South Korea imports 12% of the oil flowing through the Strait of Hormuz, making them highly vulnerable to the disruptions caused by Iran war.

* US President Donald Trump has requested that allies, including South Korea, send ships to help clear the Hormuz blockade.

* As per country's Defence Minister Ahn Gyu-back sending a warship to the blocked region would require parliamentary approval.

Indian firms launch cheaper Diabetes drug versions

NEW DELHI

Millions of patients fighting diabetes and obesity received great news as three major Indian drug companies launched affordable versions of a popular injection.

Following the expiration of a key patent, Sun Pharma, Zydus Lifesciences, and Dr. Reddy's Laboratories have released generic semaglutide, significantly cutting treatment costs for families across the nation.

These new options arrived just one day after Natco Pharma introduced its own version for around 1,290 rupees per month. Sun Pharma is offering different brands tailored for weight loss and blood sugar control, with weekly prices starting as low as 750 rupees. Meanwhile, Zydus has introduced a reusable pen device to help patients manage their health easily at home, and Dr. Reddy's has launched a prefilled disposable version.

This breakthrough is a major step for India's healthcare.

Semaglutide is a proven medicine that helps the body manage sugar and weight, but high prices often kept it out of reach. By producing these "generic" versions, Indian companies are making life-saving science accessible to the common man.

The launch also highlights India's growing power as the "pharmacy of the world." The nation currently ranks third globally in medicine production volume, exporting to over 200 countries. With strong government support, the pharmaceutical industry is expected to double in value to 130 billion dollars by 2030. Today's news proves that Indian innovation is not just about business growth, but about providing cheaper, effective care for patients everywhere.

India-Bhutan link postal payments system

NEW DELHI

Sending money across borders is about to become much easier and cheaper for citizens in India and Bhutan.

The two neighboring nations have announced a landmark digital partnership that will connect their postal networks using India's Unified Payments Interface (UPI). This move marks another major step in taking India's home-grown payment technology to the global stage.

By integrating the Universal Postal Union's transfer system with UPI, the new initiative aims to make financial services accessible to everyone, even in remote areas. A formal agreement was signed between India Post and Bhutan Post, creating a solid framework for the two countries to work together on technology, logistics, and digital mapping.

This partnership isn't just about money; it is about building a modern, high-tech bridge between two old friends.

The collaboration also focuses heavily on people. Bhutanese postal officials will soon travel to India for advanced training in modern mail management and emerging technologies. India has also offered to share its expertise in "financial inclusion," showing how post offices can help regular families save money and access banking services easily.

Beyond digital payments, the two countries plan to cooperate on cultural projects, including colorful stamp exhibitions. As India's pharmaceutical and tech sectors continue to boom, this postal deal ensures that the benefits of innovation reach the doorsteps of common citizens in both nations. This friendly alliance proves that simple, smart technology can truly change lives.

Pakistan pays millions monthly for empty pipes

ISLAMABAD

Pakistan is facing a tough financial squeeze as it continues to pay over $15 million every month for gas terminals that aren't even being used.

Even though a major supplier, QatarEnergy, stopped shipments earlier this month due to "unforeseen circumstances," the bills keep coming. Every single day, the cash-strapped nation hands over about $538,535 to private terminal operators.

The problem lies in old contracts that force the government to pay fixed fees regardless of whether any gas actually flows. While state companies have tried to pause their own obligations, these private agreements remain locked in. Petroleum Minister Ali Pervaiz Malik criticized the deals as "faulty," noting they do not serve the public interest. So far, the country has spent nearly $3 billion just on these capacity charges.

This waste comes at a painful time for ordinary citizens. With a slowing economy, high poverty, and millions of children out of school, every dollar counts. Experts warn that paying for "ghost gas" is draining the national budget when the money is desperately needed elsewhere. As the energy crisis deepens, leaders are under pressure to fix these structural weaknesses before the country's fragile economy slips further away.

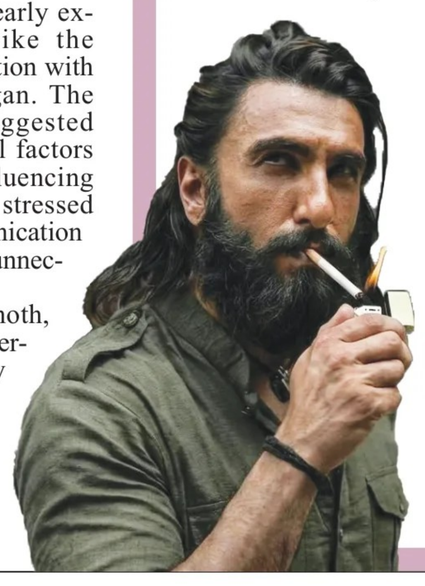
RAMYA
Criticises Dhurandhar 2 Calls Film Complete Propaganda

Kannada actor and former politician Ramya has criticised the film Dhurandhar 2: The Revenge, calling it complete propaganda despite its strong performance at the box office.

Taking to social media platform X, Ramya shared a sharp reaction to the sequel, questioning its content and narrative approach. She urged director Aditya Dhar to move away from what she described as jingoistic storytelling. In her post, she expressed disappointment, stating that the film did not meet expectations.

Ramya also criticised the film's pacing and presentation, calling it an endurance test for viewers. According to her, the movie felt stretched and failed to keep the audience engaged. She went on to advise viewers to skip watching it in theatres, highlighting her dissatisfaction with the overall experience.

Her remarks come at a time when the film is enjoying commercial success and receiving appreciation from several sections of the audience and film industry. However, it has also triggered debate over its themes and messaging.



SAMEERA REDDY
Shares Healthy Lauki Brownie Recipe With Fans

Actress Sameera Reddy has encouraged her followers to upgrade their sweet cravings with a healthy twist by preparing Lauki ka Brownie. Known for sharing simple and nutritious recipes, the actress once again highlighted how traditional ingredients can be turned into tasty treats. In her latest post, Sameera explained the step-by-step method to make these brownies. She said the process begins by grating lauki (bottle gourd) and gently squeezing out excess water to keep the texture soft and moist. To this, jaggery, peanut butter, milk, oil, and vanilla are added and mixed well to form a smooth batter.

She further suggested adding oat flour or maida, along with cocoa powder, baking soda, baking powder, and a pinch of salt. The mixture should be blended properly before stirring in chocolate chips, while saving a few to sprinkle on top for extra taste. The batter is then poured into a greased tray or one lined with parchment paper and baked at 180°C for about 25 to 30 minutes. Once baked, the brownies should be allowed to cool slightly before cutting into equal pieces and serving.

Sameera often shares such recipes that balance health and taste. Earlier in December, she posted about a banana stem and dal curry, which she said offers several health benefits, including improved digestion, better gut health, reduced bloating, and support for hormonal balance.

Her efforts continue to inspire many to adopt healthier eating habits without giving up on flavour.

Ameer Criticises Political Interference In Jana Nayagan Censorship

Noted director Ameer has strongly criticised the Central Board of Film Certification (CBFC) and the Election Commission (EC) over delays in releasing Jana Nayagan, calling out a lack of transparency and clarity regarding objections to the film.

The political drama, starring Thalapathy Vijay, has faced unusual hurdles, with speculations that its content might conflict with election guidelines in Tamil Nadu. Ameer questioned why the censor board and the film team have not clearly communicated the issues, noting that the silence has created confusion and speculation. He also highlighted that as the film is a remake, it is unclear what new content could have triggered objections.

Ameer pointed out that the Election Commission's involvement, while respected, is unprecedented for a film during election season. He drew comparisons to past controversies like Vishwaroopam, where reasons for censorship were clearly explained, unlike the current situation with Jana Nayagan. The director suggested that political factors could be influencing the delay and stressed that clear communication is essential to avoid unnecessary speculation.

Directed by H Vinoth, the mega-budget entertainer features Bobby Deol, Pooja Hegde, Mamitha Baiju, Priyamani, Prakash Raj, and Gautham Menon in pivotal roles.
